for some reason I didnt get your original response. There is no info other than me telling you about the plan. I have a brother named Paul Kruse who has been in the financial planning business for the past 30 yrs like me and has a large client base like me. (see attached business card) HE decided last year to start a money fund and copy the plan after Warren Buffett. (as you may know his clients average 22% return on their money) He put a million $ of his own money in it and acquired two very skillful and experienced traders to trade the money in the stock, option and currency markets. It is doing phenomally well as I have moved $100,000 of my own money in it.. Pauls money fund company is called YORKSHIRE FINANCIAL. He is allowing me to move 25 of my clients into the fund as he is limiting the number of people to 150 as he doesnt want it to get too cumbersome. The company is doing so well that he is now offering a promissary note on the money transferred to Yorkshire for 10% return and you only have to leave it in for one year if you want to move it. No one has moved out of it because where else can you get a great return today. I have done all the due diligence on this program and believe me Yorkshire is well positioned to meet all obligations on the promissary note. Since your IRAs are only doing about 3 % and the ING is going backwards. I wanted to give you an opportunity to get involved.. I would never recommend any move for my clients unless I knew for sure it was a safe and profitable move. Paul has been very successful in the past and extemely inovative. If you do want to transfer to this, I need to send you paperwork to move your IRA

to another custodian named EQUITY TRUST in Ohio. Once your money has transferred in than YORKSHIRE moves it to the fund with your athorization. Allianz and ING will charge a surrender fee but Yorkshire will even cover the cost of that too.. So it wont cost you anything to move the money.. EQUITY trust do have annual fees but that is taken from the proceeds of the gains. The fees are posted on their website. You will also have computer access to your account. Yorkshire will issure annual statements to you. So if you want to do this let me know and I can send you the transfer forms. If not please let me know so I can open up that slot for someone else.. Take care JON
