 US v. MASTRO

JUL 15 2013
 July 15 2013
 RONALD A. GUZMAN, JUDGE
 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

March 29, 2013

Up until very recently, I had been under the impression that the Federal Government was only pursuing a case against William Mastro regarding the trimmed Honus Wagner card and not for shilling bidders in Mastro Auctions. I then read that in fact, the Government had also indicted Bill Mastro for shilling bidders as well.

In December 2006, I was the high bidder for a Jackie Robinson game used bat sold in an on-line auction by Mastro Auctions Inc. My winning bid was $82,356 plus I was charged a 20% buyer's premium of $16,471, making my total cost $98,827. After winning the bid, I began to suspect that I may have been a victim of shill bidding, since other than one all-star labeled bat that originated directly from Rachel Robinson, all of the other Jackie Robinson bats that have since come to market have realized prices, including buyer's premiums, of $38,000-$86,000. Jackie Robinson bats that either originated from his wife Rachel, and/or were from special events such as the World Series or an all-star game, always sell for a premium.

A list of recent auction sales is as follows, with my bat listed first:

Ref #	Date	Auction Company	Price paid	Bat period	Remarks
1	12/2006	Mastro Auctions	$ 98,827	1949	MVP year
2	7/2008	Hunt Auctions	80,000	1956	Desirable #42 marked on knob
3	5/2009	Lelands	86,165	1955-56	More desirable since bat originated from Rachel Robinson
4	9/2010	Heritage Auctions	56,762	1953	Desirable #42 marked on knob
5	8/2011	Heritage Auctions	83,650	1949	MVP year - All-star game bat originated from Rachel Robinson
6	4/2012	Mears Auctions	39,382	1953
7	5/2012	SCP auctions	133,235	1950	All-star bat originated from Rachel Robinson
8	8/2012	Heritage Auctions	83,650	1956	Desirable #42 marked on knob

Two factors about these sales are worth noting. Clearly the value of Jackie Robinson bats has not risen since I acquired mine, since bat sales #2 and #8 are for the exact same bat, resold at a later date for nearly the identical amount. In addition, bat sale #5 above, another bat from 1949 like mine, although a more desirable all-star game bat that originated from Rachel Robinson, sold for only $83,650 nearly 6 years after I purchased my 1949 bat for $98,827 through Mastro Auctions. I therefore feel that it is likely that I was a victim of shill bidding, and ended up overpaying for the bat by at least $15,000, and maybe more, since my bat neither originated from Rachel Robinson nor has the #42 on the knob.

Please let me know if you need any further info.

Sincerely,

Richard Levy
